LOGLINE

A young woman has to sacrifice her childhood innocence in order to be accepted by her fiancé's family.

SYNOPSIS

When Ifigeneia gets invited for lunch to her future husband's family home, she doesn't go empty handed. Hoping to make a good impression, she brings along a little girl. However, when two mysterious investigators suddenly appear, things get quite complicated.

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

The play "The Bald Soprano" by Eugène Ionesco is what sparked my interest in the theater of the absurd, both the play and the author himself. The idea of directing a movie of that genre was born. Through absurd, comical, and dramatic elements, "Ifigeneia: no more tears" presents the sacrifices a person must make, in order to be part of a larger social group.

THE DIRECTOR

GEORGE GEORGAKOPOULOS

George Georgakopoulos was born in Athens. He started an academic career at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, where he finished his doctorate in the department of Civil Engineering. However, he was eventually drawn to motion pictures and enrolled in the School of Film of the Aristotle University. So far, he has participated in a number of film and stage productions, undertaking various crew positions. He has, also, written and directed two short films. Currently, he is in the stage of pre-production for his third short film, while simultaneously writing a script for his first attempt on directing a feature film.
